SPEAKER BIO

David Inniss is a Class of '99 grad of the United States Military Academy at WestPoint, where he graduated as a Distinguished Cadet. He holds a Master's in Business Administration from California State University, Sacramento and a Doctorate in Education Leadership and Management with a concentration in Human Resource Development from Drexel University. He lives by the personal mantra "Pave the Way, Bridge Gaps and Serve Others"—a motto that embodies the notions of leadership, relationship building, civic responsibility and ownership of one's legacy.

David is currently a founder and Lead Imaginer with UNYSUN Inc. and serves as a professor at William Jessup University in Northern California. Throughout his 18-year career as a leader in the Technology industry, and his experiences as a consultant and entrepreneur, David has had a passion for understanding how organizations can best leverage their human capital to boost productivity and enhance culture. This passion has guided him toward issues of diversity, equity and inclusion. He has facilitated several comprehensive workshops and keynotes espousing practical guidelines to embracing these in today's organizations.

As an avid researcher, David studies, writes about and speaks on issues related to fatherhood and masculinity. He specifically explores the holistic impact of fatherlessness and provides bold solutions for halting its generational perpetuation. This inspired him to write the book "Being the Dad I Never Had: Lifelong Lessons for Fathering After Fatherlessness".
